RESAURANTS COMPLEX

Description:

Utilizing solar energy and preventing the penetration of cold winds is particularly important in this climate. Therefore, we use shapes such as cubes for design, which have less external volume. In order to use solar energy, the best orientation of the building is east-west .As we know, snow can act as insulation, so the roof design should be flat so that the snow stays on it for a longer time. The design of the foot court and restaurant complex with an area of 700 square meters, which is based on climate studies and the needs of the tourist area, has a balcony with a wide view towards the mountains so that tourists can enjoy the beauty of the area in all seasons.
